CANADA AND THE STRANDED CANADIANS (Length: 12:59)

Abousfian Abdelrazic and Suad Hagi Mohamud are two Canadians who shared a common ordeal in two different places. They both found themselves in a foreign country and not allowed to come home. In this News in Review story we'll look at their stories and why they and others have accused the Canadian government of abandoning its own citizens.

AFGHANISTAN'S TROUBLED ELECTION (Length: 15:54)

In late August, Afghans went to the polls to choose a president and members of the provincial council. Canada's troops in that war-torn country helped provide security so the vote could take place. But the election was marred by violence and voting irregularities. In this News in Review story we'll look at what happened and why the result was so controversial.

REMEMBERING CANADA'S WAR DEAD (Length: 17:53)

Every November 11, many Canadians take a moment to remember the soldiers who died fighting for Canada. The main ceremony takes place at the National War Memorial in Ottawa, but many other ceremonies are held across the country. In this News in Review story we'll look at Remembrance Day and the story of Canada's war dead from the First World War to Afghanistan.

AUTISM: LIVING WITH DIFFERENCE (Length: 16:15)

Autism is a complex biomedical condition that is not yet completely understood. It can cause people to have trouble communicating or to engage in certain kinds of repetitive behavior. The traditional approach has been to try to treat or cure it, but now some are questioning that emphasis. In this News in Review story we'll hear from some autistic people who want the condition to be seen as just another human difference.
